AT BROADWAY THEATER.

"The Clansman Known to All."

The story of the Clansman is well known. Apart from its exposition of the deeds of the Ku Klux Klan, the play as a play would interest even a dullard. The love interest, the delightful comedy creations and the thrilling dramatic climaxes all combine to make a drama of most intense interest. As long as good red, healthy blood runs through human bodies, so long will plays of this type continue to attract the American people. The Clansman is now in its fifth season, and comes to the Broadway theater next Monday evening.

BREED THEATER.

"The Royal Outcast," Sensational Motion Picture.

On Thursday, the Breed theater will show another big triumph in the motion picture line, as Manager McNulty has secured for his leading story on the intensely interesting story of King Francis the First. Like all kings of a vacillating turn of mind, Francis was surrounded by cad courtiers, who, taking advantage of his failings, caused the king to become a king of subjects by furthering schemes for their own advancement. Francis had no children of his own, and the heir apparent, the infant Clarence, being only a nephew, other relatives were intruding against his interest to get control of the throne.

To prevent the abduction of the heir apparent, he is carried through secret passageways of the castle, and finally placed in the hands of a peasant, who is discovered by passing peasants, and a thrilling rescue made by the peasant wife, who swims the river and secures the young Clarence. He is kept by them for a period of seven years as a peasant for their little son. One day while selling vegetables in the capital of Arcady, they chanced to read of a reward offered for the discovery of the heir apparent, and much agitated, they hastened to their home in the hopes of concealing him, as they have grown very fond of him, but their excitement attracted the attention of a courier of the castle, and following them he secures the little prospective king.

The balance of the bill for this week is very strong, and contains a biographical feature 1,000 feet long, of great dramatic interest, there being excellent vaudeville pictures, some historical, and excellent trick comedy pictures, giving an unusually long program that is full of merit.

Miss Grace Alwin will sing at each performance, a new illustrated song, which is accompanied by a set of the hand-drawn slides seen here in a long time.

JEWETT CITY

Dorcas Circle Devises Money-Making Scheme — Automobile Accident — A Freak Night Blooming Cereus.
Dorcas Circle of the King's Daughters met at Mrs. W. H. Bennett's on Tuesday evening. Mrs. G. A. Haskell, leader, and Mrs. C. E. Spicer, Mrs. W. H. Gane, and Mrs. William C. Jeffers, delegates, were appointed to attend the state convention to be held in New Haven in October. Twenty members were present at the meeting.

Accident to Motor Party.
J. H. Milligan of Brooklyn, Conn., accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Julia Baton of Wauregan, were thrown from their automobile on North Main street Monday evening. One of the forward wheels came off, causing the accident. The fact that the car was moving slowly is the reason for no more serious results. Each woman suffered a sprained thumb and both were considerably shaken up. Mr. Milligan is a cousin of W. H. Bennett of Jewett City.

Theatrical Season Opens.
Finn opera house opened Tuesday evening with a fine production of "Miss Petticoats," presented by a company that pleased a good sized audience from start to finish. Miss Florence Farr was especially fine in the title role.

WATERMELON POISONING.

Mysterious Case of Higganum Woman.
What came near being a fatal case of watermelon poisoning occurred at Higganum on Saturday. Miss Evans at the home of J. H. Child had partaken freely of a melon purchased from Berlin. Soon after she was taken seriously ill and for a time her condition was alarming. The physician succeeded in relieving the patient and Saturday night there was a decided change for the better. Sunday a relapse came and for a second time there was doubt as to the result. A doctor was called and after some little time brought Miss Evans out. The melon upon examination was found to have been plucked and to all appearances some foreign substance had been placed in the melon. For what purpose is not known, unless it was to aid in a way to punish those who make it a business of visiting melon fields after nightfall. A piece of the melon has been sent away for analysis.

H. Harriman, paying him this tribute: "Three years ago Mr. Harriman chartered a vessel and went to Siberia. He took with him Archdeacon Nelson of New York, and together they visited the whaling fleets and gave real encouragement to those men who have a chance to go to church. POETRY.

THE STONE WOMAN OF EASTERN POINT.
At the turn of the gray and the green,
Where the new road runs to the right
(For the summer people's ease)
And on the scarlet light;

Where the tottering barn observes,
And the old farm road looks down
The harbor and out to sea,
And back to the fishing town;

Shaped of stone and of chance,
Carven of wind and of time—
Stands the Woman of Eastern Point,
Haunting my heart and my rhyme.

Stunted of stature and thin—
Coast women alike look so—
Wrapped in her blanket shawl,
Wind-blown and cold, peering low;

Past the shivering edge of the barn,
Searching the bay and the sea
For the sail that is overdue,
And the hour that never shall be.

Did she stand like that in the flesh,
Vigilant, early and late?
For the sake of a scanty love,
Bearing the blasts of fate;

Accustomed with hunger and pain;
Patient, as women are;
Work, when he is at home;
Pray, when he's over the bar;

Loving and longing and true;
Gilding her ideal of clay;
Bride, when the boat comes in;
Widow, it sails away.

Waiting and watching and gray;
Growing old, poor and alone—
Was it worth living for? Say,
Tell us, thou woman of stone;

Dust upon dust taketh wing;
Granite to granite is grown;
Seeking the salt overseas,
Turneth the heart to stone.

Wind-blown and grief-worn and brave,
Gazing the sad sea o'er,
If the heart be in death—
Spirit of Gloucester shore!
